Re: ProHome International Recommendation

To Whom It May Concern:

As the punchlist manager for the 360 Residences project located in San Jose, California, I had the great pleasure of working directly with ProHome throughout the entire interior punchlist process. ProHome was a great company to work with as they were very friendly and personable, but still maintained a high level of professionalism.

The ProHome employees were extremely thorough and had the same consistency throughout which helped to anticipate the level of expectation required as we progressed up the building. Their willingness to provide constructive criticism allowed us to address certain issues before the initial punch, thereby helping to reduce the number of items for each unit and increase the productivity and flow of the punchlist.

ProHome was also very accommodating to our needs for punching and back checking. There were times when we were only able to give them a few days notice for checking and they did everything they could to meet our needs as well as the needs of the Owner.

Our collaborative effort to complete the punchlist in a timely fashion while also meeting the level of expectations of the Owner made for a great overall relationship between all parties involved.

ProHome is an excellent company and I know that they would be a great addition to any project team.
